Getting to know Adelaide...

Adelaide sits on the eastern shore of Gulf St Vincent in the far south of South Australia. Laid out in 1836, and largely settled by German religious refugees, Adelaide is the graceful capital of South Australia. Surrounded by parklands and designed in a grid pattern interspersed by attractive squares, with the River Torrens flowing through the centre, Adelaide's population of over one million enjoys a unique environment.

Getting around Adelaide...

If you don't walk around the city you can take public transportation or taxis. Taxis can be hailed on the street or ordered with a few different cab companies, such as:

- Adelaide Independent - 13 22 11
- Suburban Taxis - 13 10 08
- Yellow Cabs - 13 22 27
- Access Cabs - 1300 360 940 (for people with mobility difficulties)

There is also public transportation - Adelaide Metro, with a system of buses, trains and the Glenelg tram. There are free buses that run in the city during the day, which are handy for those wanting transport from their accommodation within the city's square mile or in the popular North Adelaide restaurant precinct to city based attractions, with additional information on the Adelaide Council website.

Public transport runs less frequently on weekends and after 6pm, so timetables on line, or check at the Adelaide Metro desk at the corner of King William Street and Currie Street.

More about the Albatross bird...

The albatross bird is one of the largest flying birds with a wingspan of up to 12 feet (3.7m). The albatross bird can live a long life of up to 50 years. Albatrosses are highly efficient in the air, covering great distances, ranging over huge areas of ocean and regularly circle the globe. Albatrosses are capable of measuring the exact airspeed in flight, using dynamic and slope soaring to cover great distances with little exertion. They can fly about 1000km a day, without flapping its wings once.

The dynamic soaring of albatrosses is inspiring to airplane designers. The albatross's nuanced flight pattern has been charted and airplane engineers are looking for ways to apply this to aircraft, especially in the area of drones and unmanned aircraft. *

Food for thought...

Do you know that “albatross” is another term for double eagle in golf?

In golf, “albatross” means scoring three under par (-3) (the albatross being one of the largest birds); also called a double eagle in the U.S. This is an extremely rare score, and occurs most commonly on par-fives with a strong drive and a holed approach shot. Holes-in-one on par-four holes (generally short ones) are also albatrosses. The first famous albatross was made by Gene Sarazen in 1935 on the 15th hole at Augusta National Golf Club during the final round of the Masters Tournament. It vaulted him into a tie for first place and forced a playoff, which he won the next day. The sportswriters of the day termed it "the shot heard 'round the world." Albatrosses are much rarer than par-3 holes-in-one; the odds are estimated at one in 1,000,000: the odds of a hole-in-one is around one in 3,700 to one in 12,500, depending on the hole and on skill. *
